Shopping

Louisville shopping is a treat for the distinguishing tastemaker, the committed bargain hunter, and even the casual window shopper. With shopping districts from vintage to luxury scattered throughout Louisville and surrounding neighborhoods, it's no wonder the Bourbon City has become a shopping destination for much of the South and Midwest.

Shopping in downtown Louisville is as varied as its dining scene. Find an authentic Louisville gift from the exquisite creations of glass at Glassworks, authentic Kentucky-made crafts at the Kentucky Museum of Art and Craft, or souvenirs from the outstanding gift shops along Museum Row.

Just east of the central downtown business district is the Nulu Neighborhood, with locally owned boutiques, sweet shops, home décor and more.

And, a few minutes drive south is the Shelby Park neighborhood - home to the Logan Street Market. The public market has a wide variety of vendors ranging from produce to clothing to locally made art. You'll also find plenty of dining options, a wine bar, cocktail bar and special events
